Room 17 started off with 'Turtleology' with Amy, and she began to explain firstly about the structure of the turtle, and she showed us the real carapace of the turtle.

We were given a worksheet explaining the life-cycle of a turtle.

Amy is showing us an X-Ray of a turtle.
Here is a picture of the aftermath of a fox eating turtle eggs.

Here is a jar of broken turtle shells.

Here is a preserved Quacking Frog.

Marie showed us some Nyoongar art.
Here, we are all using the ochre to sign our signature.

We were able to finish off with painting red, yellow and black paint to decorate the page.

Amy has stopped us to look at a scar tree. She explains to us about how Nyoongar people had cut out bits of the tree and left a scar.

This was a photo taken of the Canning River.
A long time ago, this tree was rescued from a farm.
